DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's election with traverse of 08/10/2006 is acknowledged.

The traversal is not found persuasive because the inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions II and I are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct if they do not overlap in scope and are not obvious variants, and if it is shown that at least one subcombination is separately usable. In the instant case, subcombination I has separate utility such as controlling the generator by first alternating mode having single potential in the winding. The subcombination II having a second alternating mode, a generator can be controlled by one or many modes of operation and multi mode operation can be used in various electrical machines such as linear motors and generators. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

3. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and the inventions require a different field of search (see MPEP § 808.02), restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nakagawa US patent 6,787,931.

Regarding claims 1 and 2 Nakagawa'931 discloses a starter generator having a controlling method of a generator having a stator (13, column 4, line 38) that has a plurality of salient poles (14b1-14b3, column 4 line 47), a rotor (12, column 4, line 37) that has a plurality of salient poles of the number different from the salient poles (14b4-14b6, column 4, line 60) of the stator, and a winding (Lu2-Lw2, column 4, line 47) wound around the stator (13), characterized by comprising: executing a reflux mode at both ends of the winding set to the same potential after executing a supply mode for supplying power from a power source to the winding; and after the reflux mode, executing a regenerative mode for recovering an electromotive force generated in the winding to the power source (column 7 lines 15-59).

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 3-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

7. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The prior art of the record does not teach or suggest a supporting structure for controlling method of the generator characterized in that the generator is controlled by a switching circuit having a switching element and a diode connected to both ends of the winding, and the switching element is PWM controlled to execute the alternating mode.
